Annapolis Democratic mayoral candidate Josh Cohen picked up endorsements from the Sierra Club and Progressive Maryland this week.

Progressive Maryland advocates for the interests of working families, and the group's executive director, Sean Dobson, said Cohen won its endorsement because of his record on Smart Growth policies.

The Anne Arundel Sierra Club endorsed Cohen because of his history on environmental issues, according to a statement released by the club.

Cohen faces six other Democrats in next week's primary election. Independent Chris Fox and Republican David Cordle Sr. will face the winner of that primary in the November general election.
